REPORT GEN. VON EMMICH DEAD

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A Brussels dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph says the death of General Von Emmich, commander of the German forces before Liege, has been confirmed and that he will be succeeded by General Barwiz.

[Lieutenant-General Otto von Emmich served as a lieutenant in the war of 1870, winning the Iron Cross for valor. He was made a captain in 1880, colonel in 1897, major-general in 1901 and lieutenant-general commanding the Tenth Corps in 1905.]

SECRET ORDER TO JAP SHIPS

PARIS, Aug. 15.—The Petit Journal, the editor of which is Stephen Pichan, who was formerly minister of foreign affairs, says today that it learns on absolutely unimpeachable authority that Japan is resolved to declare war on Germany, and that official action will probably be taken today, following the return of the emperor to Tokio.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The London Daily Telegraph learns from a diplomatic correspondent that the Japanese navy has put to sea and will co-operate with the British fleet in taking effective action against the enemy's ships in the Pacific.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—An exchange dispatch from Pekin says a Chinese report is to the effect that three Japanese cruisers appeared off Laichoo yesterday. The cruisers commenced chartering of sampans, indicating the possible landing of troops. Laichoo is on the North coast of Shantung, opposite Kiaochow.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Japan will declare war against Germany within the next eighteen hours is the opinion of government officials and citizens here, who have received many confidential cablegrams from Tokio.

Messages to the State Department do not confirm these private dispatches, but Secretary Bryan is making every effort to obtain reliable information from Japan. The private messages have, however, revived general credence in official circles.

The State Department has paid close attention to the Far East situation ever since China requested the United States to exert pressure in its behalf upon the belligerent European powers and the preservation of China's integrity and neutrality. The State Department has not as yet decided what action can be taken on this request, and officials believe that Japan may act before any decision is announced.

For a number of years Japan has had a desire to increase the nation's territorial holdings, and it is believed that the European war will in a sense form an excuse for the country to make a land grab. The Japanese public has for years pressed government officials to be more aggressive towards China.

GERMANS COMMIT SUICIDE.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Brussels says the Germans besieging Liege are becoming demoralized and that many of the officers and men have committed suicide, drowning themselves in the Meuse, because of chagrin over their failure to capture the forts.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—An official statement issued at the War Office today says:

"The German prisoners declare that they literally starved, having at each meal only a bit of sausage and a small quantity of peas. They had to get their drinking water from the ponds that they passed en route."

PARIS, Aug. 15.—General Von Daimling, one of the foremost German corps commanders, has been wounded in battle, according to an official statement issued at the war office today. It says that a bullet passed through his body.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The official press bureau of the War Office and Admiralty announced today that the German offensive movement in Upper Alsace had been checked.

OFFENSIVE MOVEMENT CHECKED.

The following statement was issued:

"The offensive movement of the enemy is, for the time being, arrested in Haute, Alsace (upper Alsace). The indications are that the French have gone to that side, and that they have been advancing into the valleys of the Vosges Mountains in Upper Alsace ever since they occupied the region about Saale.

"It was announced yesterday that the French occupied Saale, driving out the Germans who had been defending the place.

"In Woevere, in the department of Meurthe-Ethex Monsell, the French fired upon a German aeroplane, bringing it down from a height of 1,000 metres (nearly a mile). The aeroplane contained two German officers, who were imprisoned.

"A battalion of light infantry in the same district put to flight a battalion of the Landwehr (militiamen), of whom forty surrendered.

"The Belgian cavalry continues to be successful in their operations around Hasselt."

The statement further said that the sum of $900 which had been extracted from the French Ambassador to cover the expenses of this trip to Paris would be resitted by the government.

DEATH GRIP OF BIG ARMIES NEAR AT HAND

By HERBERT TEMPLE.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—From the iron hand of the military censorship there escapes only enough to show that the Germans are operating on a vast scale in an endeavor to advance all along the huge battle line that threatens the weakest defence of France and that the French and British forces have effected a junction to oppose the wave of Teutonic warriors.

The big battle is now near. The gigantic armies numbering from 1,000,000 to 2,000,000 men trained for slaughter by all the devices that "civilization" can perfect are almost at death grips.

This is shown by the tightening of the censorship here and the following announcement from the Belgian ministry of war at Brussels: "In view of the present disposition of the French and Belgian army it has been decided in the interest of the country not to make any further announcement of the movement of the armies.

"The government relies on the patriotism of the press to maintain absolute silence on military operations."

The seeming slowness of the opposing forces to grapple in the decisive conflict along the huge battle line is due to the fact that the rival armies are without precedent for size. Their vast numbers throw an almost inconceivable burden on the commissariat, but the waiting period is now nearly ended.

Germany, recognizing that anything short of a decisive victory in the great first battle will be disastrous, is bringing up forces in enormous numbers.

When the steeled lines meet the battle probably will be an affair of days and the tide may ebb and flow, but Germany has so much at stake that she may be counted on to make the combat the fiercest in all history.

She is fighting not only against enormous forces, but against time itself. Russia is treading fast upon her heels and it is a life or death business to gain the victory in the western theatre of war.

BELGIUM SHAKEN BY CANNONADING AS GERMANS PUSH ON TO BRUSSELS.

GREAT WAR STORM IS NOW ABOUT TO BREAK

By BERNARD BELANCOURT.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—Belgium was shaken today with the rumble of thousands of heavy cannon which the Germans were moving to the front in preparation for the mighty conflict with the army of the allies.

The storm, which has been gathering over western Belgium for a week, seems likely to break within 24 hours.

Skirmishing between cavalry detachments and severe artillery duels at numerous places between flying squadrons of the vanguard and rearguards of the belligerents.

The Belgian War Office continues to claim victories for the allies, withstanding the fact that the German lines are moving forward. The German Imperial War Office has been proclaiming victories, but seems to be retreats only by thousand squadrons of cavalry. By the French commander-in-chief, at the headquarters of the French army, will assist in directing the movements of the allied forces in the impending struggle in Belgium. It was also said that Sir John has already arrived in this country.

There was considerable activity along the lines, and the general staff and attaches of the war offices during night and Friday are also indications that Belgian troop movements were under way. This activity followed a official bulletin from the war minister, which said:

The Germans are planning a new movement against us, but all dispositions have been made to repel it like the preceding one."

Some believe that the big engagement will be fought on the roads leading to Brussels and Antwerp, the allied army making a stand to prevent the Germans from getting into Southern Belgium for the invasion of the French frontier from West Flanders.

ALLIES IN BATTLE ARRAY.

The army of the allies is drawn up in battle array ready to strike at the enemy. The war office is careful, however, to keep secret the positions held by the forces.

Reports of anti-German sentiments are drawing comfort from the fact that the longer the Germans take in precipitating a decisive engagement in Belgium the more time the allies have for operations on the eastern border of the German empire. Belief is expressed that Germany will soon have to choose between withdrawing a part of her great army from the west or leaving the road to Berlin open for the Russian forces that are marching upon Prussia.

GERMANS REINFORCED.

The German forces stationed west of Liege are receiving reinforcements of infantry and artillery.

The fact that Belgian military is being moved to the front in big quantities indicates to the officials expects that the big battle between the invaders and the allies is near. The forward movement is also believed to be the beginning of the preparations for the fight.

Behind the mysterious veil which has effectively concealed the other from all eyes has been maintaining his forces for him to the most advantageous positions.

Dispatches from the front brought information that the Germans have pushed northward as far as Ghent and that the column which is heading toward Antwerp has made considerable progress during the past thirty-six hours.

Details of the raiding cavalrymen from the German ranks were reported by Belgian refugees arriving in Ghent. They were accompanied by a battery of light artillery.

Numbers of Uhlans were seen by Belgians near the forts south of Antwerp, but the Germans withdrew when a body of Belgian cavalry galloped to give battle.

The Belgian line of defence south of Antwerp is the latest to have its strength tested by the flying squadrons of German cavalry.

The complete French force detailed for operations in Belgium is now in touch with the Belgian army, it was officially announced at the War Office. The co-operation of the allies has been secured by an interchange of staff officers.

BELGIANS ARE ACTIVE.

There is strong belief in some quarters that Sir John French, the commander in chief of the British field army, who is reported to have joined General Joffre, the French commander-in-chief, at the headquarters of the French army, will assist in directing the movements of the allied forces in the impending struggle in Belgium. It was also said that Sir John has already arrived in this country.

There was considerable activity along the lines, and the general staff and attaches of the war offices during night and Friday are also indications that Belgian troop movements were under way. This activity followed a official bulletin from the war minister, which said:

GERMAN APPEAL TO NATIONS

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Marconi's wireless press has issued to all London papers the following German war news, officially circulated through German wireless stations and received by the Marconi Company, dated Berlin, August 14.

In an interview with the German Imperial Chancellor stated today that the war was a life and death struggle between the Germans and the Muscovite races of Russia and was due to the recent royal murders at Sarajevo.

"We warned Russia," he said, "against kindling the world war. She demanded the humiliation of Austria, and while the German Emperor continued his work for the cause of peace and the Czar was telegraphing words of friendship to him, Russia was preparing for war against Germany.

"UNNATURAL ALLIANCE."

"Highly civilized France was bound by an unnatural alliance with Russia and was compelled to prepare by strength of arms for an attack on its flank and for Franco-British frontier in case we proceeded against the French frontier supposed.

"England, bound to France by obligations disowned long ago, stood in the way of a German attack on the northern coast of France and necessity, therefore, forced us to violate the neutrality of Belgium, but we had promised emphatically to compensate that country for all damage inflicted. New England avails herself of the long-awaited opportunity to commence a war for destruction of commercially-prosperous Germany.

"We enter into that war with our trust in God. For eternal justice has risen in the fight for liberty as it did in 1813. It is with a heavy heart that we see England ranged among our opponents, notwithstanding the blood relationship and close relationship in spiritual and cultural work between the two countries.

"BARBARIC INSOLENCE."

"England has placed herself on the side of Russia whose insatiability and whose barbaric insolence have helped this war the origin of which was murder and the purpose of which was humiliation and destruction of the German race by Russian panslavism.

"We expect that the sense of justice of the American people will enable them to comprehend our situation. We invite their opinion as to the one-sided English representations and ask them to examine our point of view and in an unprejudiced way the sympathy of the American people will then lie with German culture and civilization fighting against a half Asiatic and slightly cultured barbarism."

ENGLISH CRITIC SAYS HOME ARMY IS WEAK

By LAWRENCE ELSTON,
Staff Correspondent of the American.

LONDON, Aug. 15.—An undercurrent of pessimism over England's military chances runs throughout the article of the Times military expert, which was printed today. The article says in part:

"Lord Kitchener does not find under his hand the means for waging war on a great scale. We are dreadfully short of artillery. The patriotism by its efforts and its steady patriotism is called upon to make good for the neglect, selfishness and collossal indifference to defence, which has characterized our peace-loving land in time of peace.

"What is the situation? We are fighting a nation of military people. It is in arms and we have no good reason to suppose that they have any other object in life but to crush us. France already has thrown the whole of her manhood into the fight. She can do no more. Russia is a mighty power with immense capacity for defence, but without developed offensive powers.

"We may beat back Germany, but behind the first German line are reserves. We must take it that Germany will fight this fight through as the Kaiser said, to the last breath of the last man and last farthing under such conditions war may be long very long.

"Lord Kitchener's duty is to prepare our land forces so that they may not only second the efforts of our friends, but may, by their steadily expanding numbers and their consistantly increasing efficiency, enable us to play a part worthy of England in war, and at peace brings terms most in consonant with our interests. Lord Kitchener may quite conceivably have employed his professional men, and it is quite possible that when the civilian element has exhausted themselves we shall be, as we have been in the past, incapable of continuing our war.

"There must be no question of peace, except and upon terms, even if all our allies are struck down. We should continue the war until the enemy has relinked her military power, at least, is equally impotent for a long war. Misfortunes may befall us, but they must not further Germany or ourselves one hair's breadth from our resolution. We are fighting for our very existence and for the very existence of Europe."

400,000 AUSTRIANS REPULSED IN SERVIA

LONDON, Aug. 15.—A dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company from Nish, Servia, says that 400,000 Austrian troops were repulsed with heavy losses. This is partially confirmed by a Reuter dispatch reporting the Austrians have captured Belgrade and along the Danube though they succeeded in crossing the River Save after an incessant bombardment from the Shalatz and Zemlin and Loznitza. Shabala is forty miles west of Belgrade.

A later Nish dispatch from Nish shows that the attempt of the Austrian army to invade Servia resulted in the most sanguinary battle that has been fought between the two countries' armies.

The Austrians began their movement on the Danube at night from Belgrade to the Roumanian border. The Servian troops had been expecting such a movement, however, and immediately engaged the enemy. After a battle of several hours the Austrian forces were hurled back with heavy loss.

The Austro-Hungarian forces that crossed the Save were numerically superior to the Servians and by sheer weight drove back King Peters troops. They occupied Shabats without heavy loss, but after getting a foothold in Leznitza were attacked by fresh Servian troops and the battle there is still raging.

The Servian general staff attaches no importance to the loss of Shabats, but is concentrating its troops to drive the Austrians from Leznitza. In the official account of the Austrian defeat the Servian war office said:

"The Austrians attempted to cross the Danube under cover of artillery. The Servians kept up a well-sustained fire, inflicting severe losses on the enemy, who retired in disorder. Twenty-five Austrians, unable to escape, were caught on an island.

"Servian artillery duels between Belgrade and Semendria, at the same moment, a tug and barge filled with soldiers."

MORE AMERICANS ARRIVE IN HOLLAND

AMSTERDAM, Aug. 15.—Two hundred and eighty-nine Americans arrived here today from Berlin on a special train that was routed by way of Bentheim, Prussia and Oldenzaal, Holland. The Americans who were accompanied by an attache from the American embassy at Berlin, reported a comfortable journey and said they had no trouble at the frontier. One hundred and thirty-eight members of the party are going to The Hague, seventy-two to Rotterdam, ten to The Hague, Holland and sixty-nine will remain here.

SLOW GERMAN ADVANCE HELPS ALLIED ARMY

LONDON, Aug. 15.—The slowness of the German advance extensive German-Russian frontier may now be overswept by the hordes of the Czar.

"On to Berlin!" will be their battlecry.

Today a dispatch from Rome says that, according to reliable information from St. Petersburg, Russia has mobilized 2,000,000 men on the German and Austrian frontiers, half a million on the Turkish and Roumanian frontiers, while 3,000,000 men are held in reserve.

BRUSSELS FEARS ATTACK.

Excitement, which amounted to positive panic, prevailed for a time in Brussels when it was reported the Germans were marching on the city. An official denial from military headquarters hardly availed to relieve the fears of the populace.

Military strategists are of the opinion that the Germans are merely losing no time, although they still could continue the war until the enemy has relinked her military power, at least, is equally impotent for a long war. Misfortunes may befall, but they must not further Germany or ourselves one hair's breadth from our resolution. We are fighting for our very existence and for the very existence of Europe."

SEE GERMAN PLOT IN TURKISH WARSHIP DEAL

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Upon the subject of the reported purchase of the two German warships, Breslau and Goeben, by the Turkish government, the Daily Mail says:

"The cruisers Goeben and Breslau, reported to have been purchased from Germany by Turkey, have received Turkish names and will be placed under command of Rear Admiral Arthur N. Limpus, of the British navy, who was loaned to the Turkish government in 1912 to be naval adviser.

"Turkey does not intend to employ the warships against Russia. There appears to be no doubt that their purchase is a direct contravention of international law, but the opinion is gaining ground in diplomatic circles that Turkey is the victim of a German ruse to embroil her with the Triple Entente."

CONFIRM DEFEAT OF GERMANS AT HAELEN

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—Two trains filled with German and Belgian soldiers wounded in the battle of Haelen arrived here today bringing new details of the conflict that took place about the little Brabant town.

Both Belgians and Germans confirmed earlier reports that the Kaiser's cavalry had suffered a crushing defeat. A German officer said that only 500 of the 4,000 to 5,000 Uhlans engaged had escaped unhurt.

Many guns that had been mounted on automobile trucks to support the attack of the German cavalry were mired in a swamp as the Germans fell back to Tongres and were captured.

At Tongres, however, reinforcements were met and the Germans resumed their advance.

WOMEN AT STATE HOUSE PROTEST FOOD PRICES

A dozen women representing women's organizations visited the office of Attorney-General Boynton today at the State House to protest against the high price of food during the European war.

The delegation was headed by Mrs. Edward P. Barry of South Boston, wife of the Lieutenant-Governor, as president of the Housewives' League was also represented as was the Massachusetts Women's Suffrage Association. The latter organization passed resolutions indorsing President Wilson's nation-wide investigation of food prices.

A brief hearing was held, presided over by Assistant Attorney General Eyges and Seagrave.

The women then conferred with Attorney General Boynton, who assured them that his office would start in energy, time and expense in getting at the facts and in pushing any persons found to have been guilty of conspiracy to raise the price of foods.

CO-OPERATE WITH U. S.

Federal District Attorney French conferred today with Assistant District Attorney Shea and Special Agent Howard of the Department of Justice in connection with the investigation of "war prices" in Boston.

All three are determined to get at the bottom of the unjust increase in the costs of certain foodstuffs since the war. And they are just as determined to prosecute to the limit, if evidence is found, of any combine or illegal means to boost the prices.

Advanced prices for bread loaves are now feared. The tendency of poultry is downward, while fish, eggs and dairy products show no appreciable change.

Steaks are no higher than they were a week ago, probably on the principle that the price was already as high as people could stand. Rib roasts and corned pieces have been advanced, which hits hard the people of average means. Sirloin steaks are quotable at 25 to 28 cents, rump steaks at 40 to 50 cents and round steaks at 25 to 35 cents.

Rump roasts are unchanged at 30 cents for the back and 25 cents for the face, but rib roasts are about 3 cents higher at 30 to 35 cents for the first cut and 20 to 30 cents for the second cut. Corned pieces are higher at 25 cents for brisket, 15 to 20 cents for rib, 15 to 18 cents for sticking pieces and 10 cents for flank.

MARKET STILL STRONG.

While there has been no further advance in lamb prices, the market has lost none of its strength, best hind legs and hindquarters being quoted at 22 cents, with fores at 16 cents, forequarters at 16 cents, loins at 25 cents and chops at 40 cents. Cuts of mutton are quotable at 15 to 18 cents for loins, 11 to 12 cents for forequarters, 25 to 28 cents for legs and 18 cents for "hung" legs. Veal is unchanged at 16 cents for fillet, 14 cents for steaks, 12 cents for chops and 22 cents for loins.

Pork provisions have been generally advanced, owing to the advance in hogs since the last report. Pork loins are quoted at 25 cents, small hams at 22 cents for ordinary and 24 to 25 cents for fancy, sliced ham at 30 to 35 cents, bacon at 27 cents and smoked shoulders at 17 cents.

BULLETINS

PARIS, Aug. 15.—Italy has defied Austria and refused her permission to transport four corps (160,000 men) of Austro-Hungary troops through Italian territory to the French frontier, according to a dispatch received by the Excelsior from Geneva, Switzerland, today.

PORT ARTHUR, Ont., Aug. 15.—The Canadian government wireless station here has been wrecked. When the crash of cables was heard, the staff inside the station rushed out, but shots fired by two men, who were running away, halted them. A large staff at once began repair work.

ATHENS, Aug. 15.—It is officially stated that Greece will declare war on Turkey unless a satisfactory explanation is made of attacks reported to have been made on Greek merchantmen by the cruisers Goeben and Breslau.

PARIS, Aug. 15.—French and British ships in the Dardanelles have been searched by the cruisers Goeben and Breslau, according to advices received here today. This news has increased the indignation of the French government over Turkey's action and a crisis has been reached in the relations of the two countries.

HOME RULE FOR POLES IF LOYAL.

COPENHAGEN, Aug. 15.—A newspaper dispatch from Berlin says Emperor Nicholas of Russia has promised to grant the Poles home rule if they will remain loyal in the present war.

FOUR LINERS SAIL FOR AMERICA TODAY

LONDON, Aug. 15.—Americans in London were greatly encouraged today by the announcement of the British admiralty that it had released the liners Lusitania, Mauretania and Olympic, and that it was endeavoring to share half the ports with the companies, as the Atlantic is practically clear for traffic.

Accordingly there was a great rush to book passages. The Olympic is posted to sail next Wednesday, with the Mauretania to follow on August 19, and the Lusitania, September 3. Other small ships probably will resume service, since it seems that the risk attached has been reduced to the minimum.

The Campania, the St. Louis and the Minnewaska are ready to sail for New York today, from Liverpool. The Megantic will leave the same port for Montreal. All have full passenger lists. Seven other big ships, including the Saxonia, are also scheduled to sail for New York, Boston and Montreal before the end of August.

Archibald Rose, has received a cable from President Wilson, saying he chartered immediately all the ships necessary to bring home all the refugees as soon as possible. No reason given for this change in plans, but it is believed here it is due to the long delay that would be necessary in bringing army transports from the Pacific and that there is some fresh diplomatic urgency for speedy action.

VILLON TELLS OF HORRORS

By DR. E. J. DILLON.

Special war correspondent of the American and the London Daily Telegraph.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—A two-hours' motor ride from Belgium's capital takes one to a world of grim realities and sinister contrasts. Over the country between Tirlemont and Saint Trond, but yesterday rich in cornfields and carefully tended gardens, the withering breath of war has passed.

Approaching the village of Orsmeal, unmistakable tokens of desolation meet the view. Shattered window panes and domestic utensils are scattered among the ruins of gardens or before wretched doors.

Here a couple of children are heard prattling in subdued tones, there a mother is leading her three orphaned little girls from the still smoking ruins of their home. Everywhere the loathsome spoilor of war and inhuman hate appears to have possessed these Prussian invaders.

Belgians who dealt with them at close quarters at Dormael declare the Uhlans fought with the bitterness of personal fury. Many of the corpses have their hands raised and their elbows on a level with their shoulders. The bodies show horrible wounds inflicted with weapons fired at a distance of a couple of inches from mouth or breast.

The Uhlans seized 2,000,000 francs belonging to the National Bank of Belgium at Hasselt. The bank being a private concern, this act of piracy constitutes a violation of the Fifty-third Article of the laws and customs of warfare.

In 1870, King Frederick, afterward Emperor, forbade the seizure of specie of the Bank of France on the condition that it be not employed to sustain resistance to the German arms.

Similarly, funds of the Bank of France at Strassburg, first sequestered by the Germans, were restored as private property. Today the Prussian will is the sole law.

Night brings no rest. Between the outposts the moon was shining last night, while from the woods in the distance the sudden flashes showed the troops were still vomiting death on the enemy, while on our flanks our invisible batteries were continuously spitting destructive shrapnel.

Against the pure sky one could see moving masses of our soldiers, a vision of Hell which only Dante could describe.

Bullets were whistling through the trenches, crashing in the trees or pattering with muffled thud into the earth.

The Belgian provision for the wounded is most efficient and adequate so far. Stalwart warriors, homeless families, destitute women and orphaned children receive instant attention, reminding one of the harvest of misery yet to be garnered.

BRYAN AFRAID MAINE GERMANS PLAN A RAID

BANGOR, Aug. 15.—Secretary of State Bryan has given Governor Haines a scare by telegraphing he has been informed a plot is being laid in Maine to organize Germans in the State for a raid on Canada.

While Governor Haines was attending the reunion of the alumni of Lee Normal Academy in Lee, he was astonished to receive from Secretary Bryan the following message:

"The British embassy advises Department of rumors that a man named Seligman is instigating certain German subjects to join in raids through Maine and Vermont woods upon the Dominion of Canada. Department would be glad if you would make inquiries as to the truth of these rumors, in order that proper steps may be taken to prevent use of United States for such purposes.

The Governor admits such a raid might be possible, but there are few Germans in Maine and a wide inquiry has failed to reveal a clew to the mysterious Seligman. Governor Haines has directed all sheriffs, with other officers, to be on the lookout for any anti-Canadian movement.

Governor Haines' reply to Secretary Bryan's message was:

Rumor seems absurd. There are but few Germans in Maine, and almost none at all in the northern part of the State. Will investigate promptly, however, and report if I find any foundation for the story.

Boston-Bound Boat Is Reported Seized

The German Hansa Line steamer Schneefels has been reported seized and held at Gibraltar, according to reports to American companies carrying insurance on the vessel's cargo. The steamer was bound from Calcutta to Boston. Boston agents of the Hansa line have received no confirmation of this report.

The Americans say they were well treated in Germany.

ELSA TUDOR'S COUNT GOING BACK TO ENLIST

Count Jean Marie Alain Dedeus de Pierrefeu, with the countess, who was Elsa Tudor of Boston, have come down from their beautiful home in Hancock, N. H., and are seeking a steamer on which they may return to France.

The Count, 40, is going back to fight. Scarcely was the war declared than he cried to the Countess: "Elsa, I must return to Paris." They were in Boston at the time on a visit.

The Countess—who earned a substantial living on the stage for some time after her marriage, as a classic dancer, responded: "Alain, I will go with you."

They made a hurried trip of preparation back to Hancock, and there bade goodbye to their four children; then returned to Boston.

It is probable they will sail from New York, and within a few days.

The Countess is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Tudor of No. 296 Beacon street—one of the oldest Boston families. She was an amateur dancer of some note. At a French watering place she met the Count. In three weeks they were engaged.

For a stormy three years the families of each fought the match. The Tudors said: "He's a penniless Count." The Count's relatives said: "She's a penniless American girl." As a matter of fact, Miss Tudor's family is wealthy, but she was not rich in her own right.

Nevertheless, the two were married. Then hard times came. The Count went to work, as a saddler in his father-in-law's steel mills, "made good," and now holds a splendid position.

HUNTINGTONS NOT ARRESTED; BOTH WELL TREATED IN GERMANY

WASHINGTON, Aug. 15.—Archer M. Huntington, president of the National Geographical Society, and his wife, were not arrested at Nuremburg, Germany, as first reported, Consul Skinner at Hamburg today informed the State Department. The Huntingtons never were imprisoned or confined in any manner, Skinner reported, but their automobile was requisitioned by the Germans.

The Huntingtons' man servant, a British subject, was imprisoned for a short time, but the party was otherwise unmolested. The Huntingtons are now enjoying full liberty at Nuremburg.

SOLDIERS' HEROISM PRAISED

By the medical war expert of the American and London Times, who is on the field.

BRUSSELS, Aug. 15.—I have had an opportunity in the last few days of visiting several great Brussels hospitals and seeing the wounded.

Two facts struck me very forcibly. The first was the very large number of Belgian soldiers wounded only in the legs, and secondly many of the soldiers seem to have collapsed through sheer exhaustion.

In peace times one sees and hears little or nothing of extreme exhaustion, because in times of peace the almost super-physical is not demanded. War brings new conditions.

EAGER TO FIGHT AGAIN.

These Belgian soldiers were at work and on the march during two stupendous days practically without an hour's respite. They went literally until they dropped.

As a medical man their condition interested me enormously.

What force of will to fight and struggle until the last gasp! The exhaustion one sees often in heat strokes in hot climates is commonplace, but this type of exhaustion is by itself, the final triumph of brave spirits.

The victims presented a very alarming appearance when first I met them. They seem almost dead; they are limp, pale and cold; recovery usually is not protracted. In every case the men knocked out in this manner expressed a fervent desire at once to the ranks.

So many Belgians have been shot in the legs that this fact has aroused considerable surprise in medical circles. It is not a matter of chance.

GERMANS SHOW HUMANITY.

When the German prisoners came in and were interpreted, the explanation was forthcoming that orders had been given to fire low, no doubt in the belief that a man hit in the legs must become immediately hors du combat.

This was certainly humane of the Germans, as such wounds heal speedily. The Germans wounded, on the other hand, have been hit for the most part about the body.

World Trade Open to New England by War, Says Foreign Bureau

Great opportunities exist for New England manufacturers as a result of the European war, according to the committee on foreign trade of Boston Chamber of Commerce.

"With the manufacturers of Europe cut off from the whole world," says the committee, "New York should not be permitted to monopolize the field. The ocean is New England's birthright. A little more than half a century ago Boston occupied first place in commerce. New York now has not only that place in this country, but is first in the entire world. Unless we rouse ourselves from out apathy the field opened up as a result of the war will be lost to us.

"A good, well-conducted foreign trade bureau is New England's greatest need. One hundred dollars from each concern in New England for three years will establish such a bureau on a permanent basis.

Warship Fired at Boston Steamship

NEWPORT NEWS, Va., Aug. 15.—Captain Hutton of the Merchants and Miners' steamer Dorchester, which arrived from Boston, reported that Thursday an unidentified warship fired three shots at his vessel. The Dorchester hastily displayed the American flag and the warship then turned and made off.

AN EXPLANATION OF THE WAR NEWS

It must be noted that most of the war news is coming from English, French, Belgian and Russian sources, and therefore presents their views of the situation, which must necessarily differ widely from the German view.

Such news as comes from Berlin shows the results of the fighting both on land and sea in a different light.

AUSTRALIAN TENNIS STARS HAVE EDGE ON AMERICANS IN FINAL DAVIS CUP MATCHES

BOSTON AMERICAN SPORTING NEWS

REVERE GIRL PLANS RECORD SWIM FROM REVERE BEACH TO SHIRLEY POINT AND BA

YANKEE TENNIS MEN MUST WIN TO SAVE TROPHY

DAVIS CUP RESULTS.

Doubles—Wilding and Brookes (Australasia) defeated McLoughlin and Bundy (U. S. A.) 6-3, 8-6 and 9-7.

Score to date, Australasia 2, United States 1.

Points necessary, 2.

Today's matches (final singles) —McLoughlin (U. S. A.) vs. Wilding (Australasia), Williams (U. S. A.) vs. Brookes (Australasia).

By FRANK G. MERKE.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Aug. 15.—The Davis tennis cup will go back to Australia.

This was the consensus today among tennis experts when the American champions prepared to meet the Australasian challengers in the two final singles matches that will determine the championship of the tennis world for the ensuing year and give to the winner the possession of the cup. With the count two to one against them and with the challengers needing only one more match to win the title the Americans faced a forlorn hope.

With Norman E. Brookes, the wonderful Australian, pitted against R. Norris Williams, the twenty-year-old American, in the first match it seemed to the net critics that the challenge cup would be Australia's. Certain it is that if Brookes plays in anything like the form he displayed in the first set of his singles match with Maurice E. McLoughlin, the American wizard, Williams will be beaten.

Even if Williams, through some whim of fortune secures a victory over Brookes bringing the count two all, the chances seem to be against the Americans. McLoughlin ranks as the greatest tennis player in America, but many there are who think Anthony F. Wilding is his superior and who think that Wilding will win from him. A year ago in England McLoughlin, then playing in wonderful form, met with Wilding for the singles championship of the world and Wilding played rings around the red-headed Californian, beating him in three straight.

The betting today was from 2 to 1 to 2 to 1 that the Australians take the championship 10 o 7 that Brookes beats Williams and 10 to 9 that Wilding beats McLoughlin, with little American money in sight.

There was a threat of rain in the morning clouds, but the officials said he thought he would keep back the moisture until after the matches were played.

Shamrock Will Lay Off at New York for Tuning Up Process

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Sir Thomas Lipton's yacht Shamrock IV. is on her way here from Bermuda. After her arrival [illegible] will probably be tomorrow, she may put on her racing rig and undergo a tuning up, but there will be no trial spin over the America's cup, for which she is the challenger.

This was definitely decided when the New York Yacht Club received from the Royal Ulster Yacht Club, the challenging organization, a cable message expressing agreement with the club's sporting spirit that because of war conditions in Europe the cup races should go over until next year.

O'Mara, Brooklyn Star, Breaks Leg

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Ollie O'Mara, the brilliant Brooklyn shortstop, will be out of the game for the rest of the season as the result of breaking his leg in the first inning of the league game against the Phillies. BOXING CHIEFS UP AGAINST IT; FEW GOOD MATCHES OBTAINABLE

By H. M. WALKER.

"A good match!" says the boxing promoter, "there ain't no such animal!"

The matchmakers hunt for "class," but they gather mostly trust. And the fault lies not with the promoters. It is a case of taking the best material available or pulling down their tents.

A lightweight championship battle is out of the question. Freddie Welsh, the new title holder, is not looking for work.

Perhaps, should Rudie Unholz or Frank Carsey go over to London with a side bet proposition, Welsh might take a chance. But so far as defending the championship against a legitimate opponent, Welsh is barren of ideas.

The promoters will save themselves worry and cable Ilsle by not addressing Welsh on the subject.

The only possible match in the bantamweight division is Johnnie Williams vs. Charley Ledoux, and Promoter McCarey already has secured this event. None of the other 118-pounders are worthy of hire.

The featherweight field is a barren waste, with only one cactus in sight—Johnnie Kilbane. The champion stands head and shoulder above every 122-pound boxer in the game.

No chance for the promoters to make a move in this direction. Kilbane himself is so disgusted that he promises to step up into the lightweight grade for work.

* * *

Such lightweights as are at liberty have been snapped up by the California promoters.

* * *

The welterweight boxer has disappeared along with the lightning rod agent and the horse car. The middleweight situation is a shade better than it was a year or so back.

George Chip, by knocking out Pete Crosker and Murray has worked himself forward until a Chip-Clabby match is the next kind of a drawing card.

To McMahon is the best looking for all the "white hopes." Jimmy Dime's big prospect appears able to whip all the heavies in sight, but the promoters, sensing the public's mood, are loath to bid for heavyweight matches. Drawing a line through the bantam, feather, welter and heavy weight classes and taking into consideration the fact that Welsh, Smith, Clabby, McFarland, Welling, Carpentier and many other lights are now in either England or Australia, it will be seen that the American matchmaker is, to use a good old-fashioned term—"up against it!"

ED SMITH'S COLUMN

By ED W. SMITH.

THEY may talk about England and France being boxing mad, but Australia is the one country of the world that is getting down to the real basis of the sport, taking it as a sport and an exercise. "Snowy" Baker, the Australian boxing promoter and once one of the greatest amateur athletes in the world, "down under," is meeting with a great deal of success in his latest scheme for having boxing taught in the public schools as part of the regular routine with the sanction, of course, of the parents.

* * *

ALREADY two of the provinces of the little continent have adopted Bakers' ideas and are about to install a system of teaching schoolboys in classes after the regular school hours, the instruction to be given at least twice a week. In addition to the instruction, the boys are to be given a series of short talks on the moral effect of being able to handle one's self in manly fashion. The idea is directly under the supervision of the educational departments of the provinces.

* * *

BAKER, himself a good boxer and instructor, has agreed to furnish all of the necessary instructors to carry on this excellent work and one of the states, that Victoria, Queensland and New South Wales, first being the most densely populated of the States, are to supply the example set by the others and see if the idea can be carried out successfully.

* * *

IN a personal letter to the writer Baker jubilantly disclaims that he suggested the idea for the purpose of furnishing or developing any stars in the pugilistic business. "The scheme is going to be a tremendous help in nation building," he writes. "Nothing could be more beneficial to a growing boy than a right course of exercise of this nature and instruction when he needs it most, and we figure that the moral effect will be considerable."

* * *

BAKER is one of the brightest of the world's fistic lights and has been a credit to the country he represents. He took a trip abroad a few years ago for a short time back and upon his return immediately set out to put into practice a lot of "new fangled" ideas he had in England. Baker now has under his control five of the biggest boxing and athletic arenas in the world, two being located in Sydney, including the famous Stadium and Rushcutter's Bay, two in Melbourne and one in Brisbane.

* * *

THE latest addition to the big boxing colony that Baker has established in the French team that Baker arranged for while he was in Europe. This team includes DePreitlow, the lightweight who was especially signed up for the purpose of meeting Milburn Saylor, Kid Lewis, the English champion, and Joe Shuurse, and also Vidarie, Denis, Degrand and Lepreaux.

LITTLE Steve Ketchel, the Chicago lightweight who took an unsuccessful trip to Australia, is going to stick around the Pacific Coast for a time and see if he cannot raise some kind of a raffle there. The Australians did not take much to Steve's style of milling, and as he lost both fights in which he was engaged there was little to be done but to release him from his contract. He hopes to be able to do something around San Fran in the four-round game there.

THEY like the clever stuff in the antipodes and when Johnny Griffith, the Akron lightweight, gets over there he will be able to show them a few things. The chilly lad will sail next Tuesday for Sydney. Johnny's taking Tommy Strupp, an Ohio boxing promoter, with him as agent, hoping his father, who usually does all of Johnny's managing, was unable to get away at this time. He is under contract to make five battles for "Snowy" Baker and probably will be called upon to meet such tough ones as Mickey Dunn, Hughie Mehegan, Joe Welling, Herb McCoy and one or two others. It's a tough grind.

Rival Shoe Teams in Beverly Game

A special train of four coaches will convey the Queen Quality rooters to Beverly to cheer their favorite factory over the United Shoe Machinery nine in the annual game this afternoon.

The game is held in connection with the annual San Sam Day celebration, and a crowd of more than 10,000 spectators is anticipated.

The Queen Quality team has been strengthened for this game. Johnny Farrell, Medford, and Keddie, the former Dartmouth star, will catch, Whitney, also a Dartmouth man, will go along as a second string pitcher. Fraser will play first, Hennessy second, Hoyt short, and Morris third. Manager John Godsell and Frank Price are in charge of the squad.

Tennis at Arlington.

The annual championship men's singles tennis tournament of the Arlington Heights Tennis Club is played today. The tournament will be played in two classes, viz., class A and class B, with trophies for the winner in each class.

Ellershaw Again Leader.

Leonard Ellershaw has been re-elected captain of the soccer football team of the Brockton Cricket Club. Thomas Bird will be vice-captain.

MOHR TO MEET BEYERS IN GO AT ATLAS A. A.

By JACK CONWAY.

WALTER MOHR, the nineteen-year-old Brooklyn lightweight who made such a big hit with the "fans" in his two twelve-round bouts with Eddie Murphy before the University Club in Cambridge, has been signed to clash with Charley Beyers of the South End in one of the four ten-round tussles which will be held at the Atlas A. A. next Tuesday night.

When Mohr was first signed to battle Murphy, the wise men did not take the match seriously. They figured that the skilful Worcester boxer would outclass his youthful opponent. But they were doomed to be disappointed, as Mohr turned up a grand fight and earned a draw.

The two men were later re-matched and Murphy was the victor after twelve hard rounds of fighting. Mohr is a strong, aggressive youngster and can punch hard. He will have to extend himself next Tuesday evening, however, as Beyers is one of the best lightweights in these parts, as he proved when he held Frankie Mack of Beachmont to a draw here.

Beyers is under the management of Charley Mealey, who is delivering [illegible] orations when he is not directing the affairs of his protege within the hemp ropes. For be it known to all whom it may concern that Charley is a candidate for the House of Representatives in Jimmy Donovan's stronghold is Ward 9. And Mealey himself admits that Beyers is every bit as good a politician, who himself is a politician, which should be sufficient recommendation in itself.

TOMMY FLANNAGAN and Patsy Cross will get together again next Tuesday night and try to settle which is entitled to the featherweight championship of the inner city of Cambridge. These boys met several weeks ago before the University Club and the contest was declared a draw.

Johnny Manice of Charlestown and Phinny Boyle, the clever Lowell featherweight, have been matched to meet in a return bout. These boys have already exchanged punches on two different occasions and Manice was awarded the decision both times. The writer was a spectator at the last tussle between Manice and Boyle and in my humble opinion Boyle beat Manice a dozen different ways. The second bout will be between Dick Mc-Kinnon of Roxbury and Jack Ryan, the Kentucky heavyweight who has done so well in his bouts in local rings.

THE English sporting publications are devoting considerable space these merry Summer days to the coming bout between "Gunboat" Smith and "Young" Ahearn. Ahearn was born in England, but came to this country when a young man and entered the ring, where he won considerable fame fighting around and about Salem.

Ahearn was never considered a championship possibility and when he was performing in the welterweight class he was knocked out by Packey McFarland and Jack Britton.

AHEARN then returned to England, but inactivity caused him to take on weight and he is now a light heavyweight. He fought several English ring raters and easily disposed of them. This has caused the Englishmen to hail Ahearn as the eighth wonder of the world. He was matched to fight Carpentier for a second purpose, but Smith was later substituted for Carpentier when the Frenchman went back to the fighting line of France. Smith is one of the classiest white heavyweights that has been developed for a long time and should put experience much trouble in knocking out Ahearn.

"KID" McCOY, who has positioned on a little planet of his own for many a fast forty-one years, steps forward with both in hand and brags the announcer to the house knows that he is planning a "comeback" act. McCoy asserts that he will perform his sketch in California, and that he will select Charley Miller, the big San Francisco motorman, as his victim. We do not know what the "Kid" has against Miller, but he is going to make an effort to put him in the "Down and Out Club." McCoy is a physical culture expert, and every so often he gets an idea that he can fight as well as ever. The one good thing about the entire situation is that the famous old gladiator usually decides to remain in retirement before the day arrives on which he decides to slip his victim.

LEACH CROSS' pugilistic stock has increased in value as a result of his victory over Joe Rivers. Cross has received heavy reverses during his long career in the ring, but he always seems to have the ability to "come back" when put to the test.

EDDIE MACK, manager of Terry McGovern, is desirous of matching his protege with one of the big three—Matty Baldwin, Eddie Murphy or Gilbert Gallant. Mack believes that Brooks' punching ability would enable him to defeat any member of this trio. He points with pride, like a regular, big league manager, to the fact that Brooks almost knocked out Johnny "Young" Losttig, while the best Baldwin could get out of the New Yorker was to get a draw.

EDDIE MURPHY is training near his home in South Boston for his twelve-round encounter with Frankie Nelson of New York, which will be staged before the Manchester Sporting Club next Wednesday night. Murphy does not believe he will experience much trouble in winning from Nelson. He says he will then be ready to exchange blows with Matty Baldwin at the Atlas Club.

Bransfield May Come Back.

WORCESTER, Aug. 15.—William E. Bransfield might jump in and help the Hunters win the pennant in the New England League race if he doesn't find it too difficult to get into condition. Bransfield has been manager of Montreal for the last two seasons, his last playing being in Louisville of the American Association.

SAM CRAWFORD STAR HITTER OF BIG LEAGUES

Who hits the hardest wallop in baseball? Who is the game's most eminent slugger from the viewpoint of power applied with bat against ball?

This query has been put to any number of ball players in both leagues, and there is one who leads by a margin of 10 to 1 in the way of votes.

He isn't Lajoie or Wagner. He isn't Cobb, Jackson or Schulte. He isn't Baker or Speaker. The mighty J. Franklin of Trappe, Md., was outvoted.

The answer returned was Wahoo Sam Crawford. American League players all figure that Crawford is the same [illegible] as Hans Wagner.

And those of the Giants who watched Frank Baker and noted the world with Crawford gave the Tiger all the edge and figured he was also far beyond any Frisco in the National League.

Once in a while Joe Jackson can hit a ball as far as any man. Once in a while Cravath or Zimmerman or Merkle or Snider or Chief Wilson or Ham Hyatt can pole one to the tall and uncut.

But Baker is a tremendous clouter, depending mainly upon a heavy bat and a tremendously powerful pair of wrists. But for a clean, driving swing, combined with wonderful arms of the wrists, Crawford leads them all.

BIKE STARS IN TITLE RACE AT BEACH TONIGHT

CARD OF RACES.

Twenty-five-mile motor-paced race —Lawrence, Mitten, Hansen, Madono.
Special sprint match—Moretti vs. Clarke.
Two-mile amateur handicap.
Australian pursuit race for professionals.
Five-mile open for amateurs.
One-mile invitation for amateurs.
One-mile professional.

The opening heat of the middle distance bike championship, twenty-five miles behind pace, and a special sprint match between Jackie Clarke of Australia and Caesar Moretti of Milan, Italy, are the leading attractions at the Revere Cycle Track tonight.

The middle distance race will have four competitors, Vincenzo Madono, Percy Lawrence, Worth Mitten and Norman Hansen. The winner will qualify for the final.

Interest in the motor-paced race is centered in the work of Madono. This youngster, the newest star of the bone collowers, has his eyes on the title, but he will certainly have his work cut out for him in tackling such seasoned campaigners as Mitten, Lawrence and Hansen. The last-named rider has been on the beach for the first time tonight. He is a Dane and has done his best work on the New York and Newark tracks.

The sprint match will be doubly interesting, inasmuch as Clarke and Moretti are two of the "big four" who were carded to race at the beach last Tuesday.

RED SOX HOPE TO FIND LOST PUNCH TODAY

With the count two games to nothing in favor of the Yankees, it's up to the Red Sox to get back into the good graces of the "fans" by coming through with a victory at the Fenway this afternoon. This will be the final combat of the series, and either Joe Wood or Ernie Shore, the lanky Baltimorean, will be sent in as the last hope of the Carrigans.

That punch which cut a big figure in the Red Sox' last engagement on the home pasture less than a month ago seems to be lacking these days. The last two defeats were by a one-run margin, and many opportunities were passed up when a hit would have turned the tide of victory Bostonward.

LET CHANCES SLIP BY.

Talking about opportunities one is reminded that the Sox also had a good chance yesterday to tighten the gap between the Athletics and themselves, as the Manimen fell a victim to the puzzling slants of Walter Johnson. This they also let slip through their fingers, but consolation may be found in the fact that the Athletics didn't gain either.

Eleven games measures the distance between Philadelphia and Boston today. This is quite a gap when compared with the one between the leader and tailenders in the National League.

Pittsburgh and Brooklyn, joint holders of the cellar berth in the old organizations, are but 12½ games behind the leading Giants.

In short, either one of the National tailenders has a much better chance to win the pennant in their league as the Red Sox have in the opposition league. But still, there is hope, and it remains for the Red Sox to show why today.

COOPER SENT TO GRAYS.

Coming back to the pitching selections, Manager Chance of the New Yorkers has any one of four pitchers ready to send to the firing line this afternoon, namely, Caldwell, McInnis, Warhop or Keating.

Guy Cooper, the pitcher whom the Red Sox secured from the Yankees early this season, has been turned over to the Providence club, of which President Lannin of the Boston club is now owner.

The Grays are making a great fight to land the flag in the International League, and they believe with the aid of a good twirler their chances of pulling out a winner will be easy.

Cooper is a corking good pitcher but with his present staff Manager Carrigan has had very little use for him except as a relief man.

Taylor Trophy Won by Golfer Goodale

A. W. Goodale of Wollaston was the winner in the final match for the General Charles H. Taylor trophy, offered by the Boston Yacht Club at the Wollaston Golf Club, defeating F. H. Hoyt in a 36-hole final by 1 up in 38 holes.

R. V. Bean of Winchester won the Post trophy, defeating T. H. Clarkson of Woodland by 3 and 2. The Journal trophy final was postponed until Monday, when E. M. Taft, Jr., of Hatherly meets W. H. Garland of Woodland. F. G. Thayer had the field in the medal play handicap.

Minute Boys' Game.

The Minute Boys' nine of Lexington, with ten victories to its credit, is out to win from the Riversides of Cambridge on the Lexington Athletic Field today. The Minute Boys have arranged for a double-header with the Winchester town team Labor Day.

BAILEY PRAISES TRIS SPEAKER; MODEL AND STAR BALL PLAYER

By BILL BAILEY.

Army of fans, we desire to present Tris Speaker. It isn't the official Speaker we desire to present—it's Tris, the man.

He isn't temperamental. That's where he differs from Cobb. Bill Carrigan says that he is one of the easiest fellows on the team to handle.

"Why shouldn't I be?" queried Tris. "I have figured it all out in my own mind," he continued. "Baseball is my profession. Naturally I am anxious to get all out of it that I can.

* * *

"I figure that if I please my employer that he in turn will try to please me. Since he pays me to play baseball, it is up to me to be in the pink every day, as that he can get his money's worth. Which means that I in turn can get more money."

That's Speaker's philosophy. Or just plain common horse sense, if you prefer that.

* * *

Speaker has his weaknesses. He may have two or three, but one of them is "kids." Or is that his strength?

Another of Speaker's failings is the bleacherites. If you are lucky and Speaker has had a good day, you get a new ball.

The moment the last out is made the ball is passed to Tris and he heaves it into the bleachers. There is a scramble, of course, and some one of the fellows is made happy.

* * *

You mustn't suppose that Tris does not watch his P's and Q's because he is good natured. He watches them carefully. You will remember that when Tris came home from around the world and the Federal agents got after him, he signed with the Red Sox when they paid him $15,000 a year. That's a pretty fair salary.

Likewise did he balk when they wanted to take the ten-day clause out of his contract? It's still there, which means that he may negotiate with the Feds some more.

That's Speaker, the fellow who promises to become a nightmare to Connie Mack, for it is a saying that as goes Speaker so go the Red Sox.

When he is hitting they are hard to beat. When he isn't hitting they cut little ice.

Farren and Jasper to Clash Monday

Joe Farren, the East Boston welterweight, and "Young" Jasper of Somerville will today complete training for their twelve-round bout, which will be staged in Bangor, Me., next Monday night. Lou Kelly, manager of Farren, says that his protege is in fine condition and he is confident that he will breeze in a winner. If Farren wins he will be matched with Mike Glover of South Boston.

These two boys have met in two bouts at the Athe Club this year, Jasper won the decision in the first contest, while Farren got a draw in the second encounter.

Mike Glover and "Wild Bill" Fleming have been signed to clash in a twelve-round whirl in Augusta on Labor Day.

Cancel Gardiner Games.

AUGUSTA, Me., Aug. 15.—The protest of the Winthrop baseball team of the two games played with Gardiner July 4, alleging Gardiner played three outside men contrary to the laws of the Kennebec Trolley League, has been sustained by the Board of Arbitration. It was voted, however, to cancel the games from the standing. This makes Winthrop's percentage .600 and Gardiner's .400.

Mott and Brown Win Golf at Bethlehem

BETHLEHEM, N. H., Aug. 15.—R. H. Mott of Philadelphia and L. G. Brown of Haverhill, playing with a handicap of ten, made a score of 70 and 70 net in the Country Club four-ball, best-ball event. Second in line were J. William Kennedy of Forest Hill and Dr. C. G. Giddings of Atlanta, 83-3—72, and the third pair were A. T. Guthelm of Lexington and Frank M. English of New Haven, 81—5—78.

Huskie to Race in Quincy Y. C. Matches

A. F. Breed's sonder boat Huskie has been selected by the regatta committee of the Corinthian Yacht Club to represent the club in the Quincy Challenge Cup match, that starts off Marblehead next Monday.

There probably will be in the competition for this trophy ten of the sonder fleet, as the holding club, the Boston Y. C., has received challenges from nine of the local clubs.

PRETTY REVERE GIRL TO MAKE RECORD SWIM

Cecilia Friedburg of Revere, but formerly of Roxbury, whose swimming feats have attracted no little attention throughout Greater Boston, has mapped out a difficult stunt for herself tomorrow, which, if successful, will place the pretty young beach favorite among the top liners.

Miss Friedburg will start out from Revere at 6 o'clock in the morning and swim to Shirley Point by way of Nahant and the Graves, and will then endeavor to swim back to Revere, a total distance of eighteen miles.

The rise of Miss Friedburg as a swimmer has caused considerable comment among the swimming experts of Greater Boston. The pretty Revere girl was taught how to swim two years ago at the Cabot street baths, Roxbury.

From the start she was a very apt pupil and her tutors had but little difficulty in teaching her the various strokes that are used in swimming.

Miss Friedburg first attracted attention by her swimming ability last year, when she successfully negotiated the swim from Revere Beach to Nahant, being the youngest swimmer to make the distance.

Tomorrow Miss Friedburg expects to be in the water for nearly twelve hours. She will be accompanied by her father, brother and several newspaper men.

Resolute Tried Out with New Set of Sails

BRISTOL, R. I., Aug. 15.—The cup candidate Resolute was given a spin in a gruelling southwest breeze when several new sails from Herreshoff's loft were tried.

The boat remained out two hours, but carried no topsail. Secretary Cormack, the Herreshoffs and Manager Emmons had a long talk over the racing plans.

Walters Proves Easy for Mike Gibbons

CHICAGO, Aug. 15.—Billy Walters was no match for Mike Gibbons in their six-round fight at Maple Grove. Gibbons gave an exhibition that was little short of marvelous. Walters never got farther than Mike's left jab, for when this was not stuck out to meet him, Gibbons put on one of his fancy sidesteps, leaving Walters bewildered on the other side of the ring.

K. of C. Bowlers to Open New Quarters

The new bowling alleys in the Mt. Benedict Council, K. of C. Building on Highland avenue, Somerville, will be opened on next Monday evening with a match between the several six men will take part in the dedication exercises. It is planned to have individual matches and several games between the different teams of the K. of C. League, besides the special contest between the ladies.

Match Chip and Murray.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 15.—George Chip of New Castle, Pa., and Billy Murray of Petaluma, Cal., have been matched to fight twenty rounds here on Admission Day, September 9. In their last fight Chip knocked Murray out in the fifteenth round.

Houck Knocked Out.

NEW YORK, Aug. 15.—Benny Leonard knocked out Tommy Houck of Philadelphia in the seventh round of their 10-round bout at the Alexandria A. C. at Elmsford, N. Y.

ONE MORE AND FLAG IS WON, SAYS MANAGER

Another game nearer the top today and still going. I tell you what, if we can win today, clean up the series with the Giants, we will surely be [and the pennant— says George Stallings, manager of the Braves.

NEW YORK, Aug. 14.—Christy Mathewson, grand old veteran, stands as the sole hope of the Giants against the climbing Boston Braves.

With the rushing invaders only four and a half games back, already victors in the two contests of the great series, it is distinctly up to the "Old Master" to try and stop the now alarming advance of the contenders.

While Lefty George Tyler, always a Giant Nemesis, fit and anxious to man the hurling pill for the enemy, hops in the Giant breasts does not burn very high.

As a matter of fact, the fighting, resistless game of the Braves has swept the Giants off their feet. Thursday's downfall was looked on as a sort of an accident by most of the McGraws, but the effective manner in which the defeat was accomplished yesterday was a revelation.

FINAL BATTLE TODAY.

That Boston team will be a peculiar bunch, sure as you're born, unless something happens to it. It's wild attack on the offensive and its impregnable strength on the defensive will surely win right through to the fore if all goes well.

New York, always strongest of home cities, has been carried away by the wonderful fire and dash of the invaders, and strange though it may seem, at present there are almost as many Brave "fans" in Gotham as there are Giant rooters.

Today, in the final game of the series, Big Six will be chased out to the mound to check the rushers. The great veteran has all his baseball life been stepping into the breach for McGraw and turning defeat into victory.

To save the 1914 pennant for the Giants he must win today. If the Braves swamp the leaders again, it will be only a matter of time till they sweep into the lead.

GIANTS ON DEFENSIVE.

The Giants are on the defensive, fighting hard, it is true, but ready to blow unless the tide of fortune swings very suddenly.

What's more important, another win for the victory-crazed Braves will make them so cocky that nothing ever will stop them.

So history seems due to repeat, with Matty walking out from on the pitcher's box at the old Polo Grounds, to strain his mighty arm and wrench his sturdy heart that victory may perch again on the Giant banners.

But he has the job of a lifetime on his hands. Lefty Tyler, who will surely pitch for Stallings unless something unforeseen happens, is at present the greatest southpaw in the big league.

He has not worked since last Tuesday and is consequently ripe for another tough tussle. Even if he does not show, the challengers have plenty of other good twirling material ready for the clash.

Young Strand, also a portsider, is, according to Boss Stallings, good enough today to go out and beat anybody, while big Otto Hess is likewise fretting for a chance to start a game.

PLAY CHAMPIONSHIP BALL.

In the last two games the Braves did not need much good pitching. They banged the ball hard enough to win no matter what the Giants might do to their own twirlers.

This has been the case all this year, but his head work has pulled him through many a tight battle. But the Braves are taking advantage of every opening in this series, and if they touch up Matty at all, they will come mighty close to pushing over a few counters.

The whole outfit, filled with the necessary winning spirit, is playing championship ball. When a hit is needed the batters are coming up and delivering it. When a sensational play only will stop Giant scores the proper thriller is immediately executed.

The Braves today are so close to the front that they actually figure themselves up there. Here's the way the two leaders stand.

	W.	L.	Behind Leader
Giants	58	42
Braves	63	46	4½ games

As the Braves were fifteen full battles to the rear a little over a month ago, it's not at all surprising that a small matter of four games is considered a trifle by them.

CITY IS BASEBALL MAD.

Another big crowd is sure to be out today for the last glimpse of the flying Boston battlers. Realizing that the Giants have finally been pushed to the wall and are fighting for life or death, New York is baseball mad.

The Polo Grounds should be jammed this afternoon, as the champion Giants and the threatening, climbing Braves start their last desperate setto.

Richards Postpones His Channel Swim

Sam Richards has given up his plans to swim the English Channel this Summer. Richards learned that the British government would not permit Channel swimming at present. The information came in a cablegram sent by Henry F. Sullivan, the Lowell swimmer.

Richards is disappointed, but says he will be on hand next Year, or whenever European conditions will allow, to make the attempt to lower Captain Webb's record.

BASEBALL NEWS AND NOTES

HONUS WAGNER IS NOW REGISTERED as a 219 hitsmith, which is some distance ahead of Ty Cobb. Honus held in office 219 hits, but he failed to pull himself into 200 class before the season ended. There seems no chance of Lajoie doing that this year.

IN EACH LEAGUE NEW YORK HAS A strong candidate for base stealing honors. In the National League Burns is leading Clarke by one for the lead, and in the American Flatt is leading Milan. Both men have a chance the two leaders are having things their own way.

WITH O'MARA SIGNED TO A CONTRACT until the close of the 1916 season and Dick East logging a similar document, the Brooklyn team is well fortified in shortstops for the next two seasons. Both men have the Tebeau think for the long-term contracts.

THE RACE FOR BATTING HONORS IN the National League is getting warmer. Sisler and East is now within ten points of Benny Kauff, and both are hitting hard and often. Sisler can also dropped down about thirty points on total bases.

ATHLETIC NEWS AND CHATTER

Jack Moakley, Cornell's peerless coach, has little to worry about in the track and cross country prospects for next season. Of the seven men captured the intercollegiate cross country championship last year, only two graduate this year, Ted Caldwell—while Rhodt, the husky Cornell miler, the coach, was free to build up a new team, but he developed those stars so cleverly that Armagnac should be among the topnotchers in the scholastic cross-country game.

* * *

The Johns Hopkins track at Baltimore, where the intercollegiate championships will be held, is in fine condition for the big events.

Albert Wanderlich, the middle distance star of the Abington High, will enter the University of Pennsylvania this Fall. Starting as the class's team-mate, will enter Cornell, Dr. William T. McGrew, the coach, was free to build up a new team, but he developed those stars so cleverly that Armagnac should be among the topnotchers in the scholastic cross-country game.

Hugh C. McGrath of the Park and Recreation Department announces another track meet to be held at Charlesbank Gymnasium tomorrow afternoon, open to residents of the South and West Ends. This is the last preliminary meet of the season and the three first place winners will compete in the final meet at Franklin Field August 22. Entries close with Joseph J. McNamara, Charlesbank Gymnasium, Joseph A. Cahalan, Columbus avenue playground, or with E. K. Kenrich, in the street sheet. Events: 50-yard dash, 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, one-mile run, one-mile walk, running high jump, running broad jump, 16-pound shot put, baseball throw.

* * *

Wesley M. Oler, Yale's high jumper, will not compete in championships this year. Of the men in this event a better chance for high honors in the line of Hamilton, who has just returned from abroad and feels that he is entitled to a rest.

* * *

Detroit will have some of those Olympic events as its residents. Gaston Strobino, who was the star of the Detroit Olympic Club, will enter the hop-skip-and-jump trade there. Ralph Craig, winner of the two and three-mile events at Stockholm, has always lived in Detroit.

* * *

In a three-days' meet to be contested next week in England between Farming of South Africa and Australia, Farmer Tom Longboat will represent the latter. Time of 161 revealed in all three heats, and the races were held on a grass track with a heavy rain falling.

Last Preliminary City Track Meet at Charlesbank Today

The last preliminary track and field meet in the list of Summer games under the auspices of the Park and Recreation Department is being held at Charlesbank Gymnasium today at 3 o'clock. A large field of entries has been received in the junior, intermediate and senior divisions, as the South and West End districts of the city, for which the meet is being held, contains many prominent interscholastic cracks. These boys are anxious to qualify in the final events to be held next Saturday at Franklin Field, as the handsome gold, silver and bronze medals which will be awarded the first three place winners in each event, and which are emblematic of the city championship, are being eagerly sought for by those youthful champions.

The meet today will start at 3 p. m., and already the list of entries received insures a high-class athletic meet.

Entries may be made to Joseph McNamara, Charlesbank Gymnasium, or Joseph A. Cahalan, Columbus avenue playground.

Carman Wins Big Race.

A Bachelor's Diary

By MAX

JULY 19.

Yesterday was composed of a series of surprises, Friend Diary. The greatest one came to me when I found myself liking Josephine! As a general rule when a man has loved a woman and has had to suffer rude electment from the territory of her life he slams the door of his heart on her forevermore. If he cannot leave love he will put up with nothing less. And now after ten years of bitterness against the woman who jilted me I find myself at last sincerely and earnestly Josephine Dagood's friend. And this is how it happened:

When the 2:34 pulled in at the station yesterday I found Josephine's sombre clad figure waiting for me. It was only a few blocks from the station to her pretty cottage, and soon I was sitting on her vine-clad piazza with a few late ramblers nodding a greeting to me while Josephine poured iced tea and insisted that I smoke "to keep the mosquitoes away."

I have always had a feeling that a woman who would actually invite me to smoke, instead of giving a grudging "Yes" to my plea, was distinctly a good fellow; Josephine used to "feel faint" at the mere mention of a cigarette—and a pipe was absolutely taboo." Some day I'll write a sermon entitled "What the Miss of Nineteen Can Learn from the Mrs. of Twenty-nine." It will sell, too!

When my comfort was thoroughly looked out for and assured, Josephine told me her story and made her request.

SHE TELLS HER STORY

"Max, I was a motherless girl when I did my best to ruin your happiness. I know the bitter lack in the life of a girl who is brought up by paid governesses and housekeepers—and men. I am a childless mother now. It would help me to help some girl in the way that only a mother could do.

"Can you believe that life has disciplined me—has whipped me into line so that now I am a good enough woman to intrust with your Manette—for the Summer?"

"Manette?" I gasped brutally. "What can you want of my Manette?"

"I want to mother her," stated Josephine simply. "Oh, Max, if ever I had remembered a mother, do you think I would have acted as I did to you, or lost Sidney Darrow's love?"

"You brought Darrow's child up to hate him. You never called him to her until she lay dying, Josephine. You left him and continued your maiden name. You have broken him pretty badly. How are you to be judged for that?"

"Max, I adored Sidney Darrow blindly. I cared for him with all the jealousy and unselfishness of my undisciplined nature. He tired of my love and me. He left me for another when Sidonie was a wee baby. I made up my mind that my child must be all mine, after his neglect forced me to leave her father. And I only learned the lesson, 'Vengeance is mine, saith the Lord. I will repay,' after she had died.

"And poor Sidney did not come out to the home from which I had shut him until the day of the funeral.

* * * Well, I don't blame you, Max. Of course you would not trust Manette to me for the Summer. But I thought it would do her good to get out of the city—and thought I'd find peace in mothering her.

"She's just over fifteen now, isn't she?" I thought I could help her find herself. Fifteen is such a critical time with a pretty little daughter—I'm sorry, Max. Would you like to see my little garden?" finished Josephine without whimper or a whine.

MANETTE COMES ON THE SCENE

I like women who know how to take their medicine. Most of them have to have sugar-coated pills.

We were sitting on the little side porch shelling peas for Josephine's supper when Rex Farnham's car drew up with a flushed and dishevelled Manette at the wheel.

"How truly rural!" my niece called gayly to Josephine, quite ignoring her deep black and a certain quiet air of mourning that tinges everything the newly bereaved mother does. "Rex says if you folks want to hop in, he'll let me drive us down to the shore to show what his pet pupil can do."

To my amazement Josephine accepted and we all drove down with Manette at the wheel. There was something very annoying to me in the fact that Manette was calling a man of thirty by his first name, and I regretted that I had consented to allow Farnham to bring her and call for me. Manette's giggling and boisterous good-fellowship with this man who was my friend did not appeal to me.

The child was distinctly impressed by Josephine's quiet air of breeding and seemed immensely impressed when Josephine suggested that we all drive back to supper with her, as she would not, of course, dine out.

"Say, Uncle Max, I wish we could have a dicky little place for the Summer—one just like this. Would you drive down to see your nearest, Rex, or would the city prove too fascinating to leave?" asked Manette pertly, while we were eating our peach shortcake.

"I would leave you here until Monday morning if Mrs. Osgood happened to ask you," I found myself saying.

JOSEPHINE ASKS HER TO STAY

"Will you stay, Manette?" asked Josephine as quietly as if I had not rudely refused to entrust my niece to her a few hours before.

"Will I stay? Well, ra-ther!" cried the child.

I was distinctly relieved that she showed no regret at seeing Rex drive off with me an hour later.

"Shall I come and get you Monday morning, Kiddie?" asked Rex.

Before she could reply Josephine spoke gently: "I am going up to the city Monday afternoon. Would you wait and ride up on the train with me, Manette?"

"You bet!" said Manette.

"Thank you more than I can put in mere words, Max," said Josephine quietly to me at parting.

But my chief feeling was gratitude to her.

Rex was very quiet all the way back to the city. I hope a man of thirty is not going to be rash enough to fall in love with my little girl.

(In the next instalment Max tells of an offer to make a flying trip to Europe.)

Chic, Smart, Graceful

Are These Creations by a Famous Parisian Designer. Note the Newest Coat, Which Is Almost a Cape

SOME of the newest coats are almost as wide as the long capes. One of these of the type which has appeared recently has been sketched by a leading Parisian costumier for the Princess Fizlandoff, and is shown at the left in the picture.

The small coat is of strawberry crepon de cotton, very short at the front. It makes a basque with wide stitched plaits caught under a stitched band, fastened by a button of the material.

The long sleeves are finished by high revers of white linen, hem stitched as the collar. The blouse is of white tulle.

The skirt, of white crepon, strawberry striped, is a plain and round model and hemmed with a strawberry silk braid.

The opening, at the middle front, is outlined by a row of small crochet buttons.

SOME years are the lingerie frock was made of "musseline de communiante." Last year it is of organdy, as shown by the model at the right.

The bodice of this afternoon frock is a loose blouson, continued at back by a small court mantle bordered by a ruching of same material.

The elbow sleeves are of embroidered net, finished by a ruching.

A Bayadere girdle encircles the hips in a cutaway line at front and catches up a long tunic, bordered at the bottom by a ruching.

The underskirt, which makes the "base," is of white taffeta and totally plaited.—OLIVETTE.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WEN Pa came hoam last nite he had a fonygraf with he had bought for a present for me. Ma laffed at him for gitting it because Pa sed that he dident like fonygrafs.

The reason I bought this littel instrument for Bobbie, sed Pa, is because there is one song on it that I want you & Bobbie to hear. It is called I Luv My Pashunt Husband.

A very poetick titel, to be sure, sed Ma.

Well, she sed to Pa, dear pashunt husband, play the record to youre impashunt fambly, & this is the song that the fonygraf played.

A young & luvly lady was sitting in her hoam.

Her husband was at work down on the docks.

Two lady frends suggested that they take a little roam

& tango until nearly five o'clock.

We know you luv to tango, they sed to that fair bride.

This is the life, cum on & lets be gay.

The yung wife thought a minit, & sadly then she sighed.

But to them two young mat-rons she did say.

CHORUS:

I luv my pashunt husband, so good & kind & true,

If he can work down on the docks I can do housework too.

I'd luv to go and tango, onst I won a tango prize,

But I luv my pashunt husband, & besides he mite git wise.

Now then, sed Pa, what do you think of that? I guess she told them other gals sumthing, dident she?

I guess she did, sed Ma. I think that is a perfectly senseless song, & if you bought this fonygraf jest to let me hear it, I think you lied in gitting soft inside. I guess you better take it back.

But she dident go & tango, that is the point, sed Pa.

I know, sed Ma, but the last line spoils it all. You knew it wud, too, when you brot it hoam. What are sum of the other records? sed Ma.

There is one here called You Brook my hart to pass the time Away. That guy cuddent have been very busy, sed Pa.

There is many a man that has did that very thing, sed Ma.

So I have been told, sed Pa, but there is also many a man that only thought he was braking a hart. You know, wife, sed Pa, harts dosnt brake so easy. As old H. Kinney says, the hart is only a muscle & a muscle isent so easy to brake as a egg shell. But it is a very pathetick song, sed Pa, & if you wud like to hear it, I will play it for you.

No, sed Ma, I dosnt think I care to hear it. It wud make me sad, & there is enuff going on in the world now to make people sad without listening to a popular song. I think in the morning, dear, that you better wrap that fonygraf up nice & talk it back to the place where you got it.

Oh, sed Pa, if you feel that way, I can do it.

I feel that way, sed Ma.

Constance and Edith Have a Heated Quarrel Over the Latter's Unjust Treatment of Tom

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER.

CHAPTER XXVII.

TOM MORTON'S letter to Edith Hale had been sent on the impulse of the moment, as soon as he had received Constance Medford's note. He had felt that he could not endure another hour without asking the woman he loved to give him a chance to explain matters to her. To this end he had written urgently, perhaps more convincingly than he knew. With the dread of further delays, caught him by the circumstances of the past few days, he emulated Constance Medford's example and put upon his envelope a special delivery stamp.

The letter reached its destination during the evening and was laid by Constance upon Edith's dressing table. Here the white oblong caught the girl's eye as soon as she switched on the light in her room after parting from Ralph at the door of her home. She had paused, as was her custom, at her mother's room to say good-night, then had gone softly to her own chamber. She did not suspect that her cousin was lying awake, hoping that Edith would come to her with some news of Tom. Constance felt that she could sleep better if she knew that Tom was not as wretched as she feared.

But this whim—if whim it was—was not to be gratified, and she turned over with a sigh and closed her eyes. Once she thought she heard a door open and shut, but as there was no one to respond she convinced herself that she had been mistaken and tried to think of other matters.

Meanwhile Edith looked at the envelope before her with a sneer of disgust. Perhaps there is no person stronger in her prejudices than the much-loved woman who has accustomed to having things her own way, and can, therefore, brook no opposing of her will. Tom had mortified her, had seemed not to care enough about her to be present upon the occasion of her dinner, had, she thought, been with some other woman. All of these misdemeanors made it hard for her to forgive him. A woman who loved more deeply, who had known more real suffering, would have trusted more, or would, at least, have given the offender an opportunity to explain himself. But wounded vanity coupled with jealousy form a combination that even a strong and just man would find hard to fight. And a pretty woman can be very vindictive to one who seems to forget her charms.

With a determination that did not falter, Edith picked up the letter, carried it to her desk, and seating herself there, pulled off her long gloves, dropping them in her haste on the floor, seized an envelope, slipped Tom's unopened letter into this, and with a firm hand addressed it to the sender. Then, stamping it, she crept softly downstairs with it, and, in spite of the lateness of the hour and the darkness of midnight, ran down the garden walk and dropped the letter into the box at the gate. The front door slipped from her grasp as she was closing it upon her return and it was the sound that Constance heard. Had she suspected who had caused the noise and what her errand out-of-doors had been, she would have slept even less than she did that night.

MOODY THOUGHTS

Yet she was not to be kept long in ignorance of Edith's actions. After breakfast the following morning the two girls strolled out upon the broad veranda. The clouds of yesterday had been driven away by a favoring breeze and once more the world looked very beautiful. Mrs. Hale had gone out through one of the long windows from the dining room to chat about the plans for the day. She had asked Edith no questions, as her husband had suggested that "the child was best left alone until she could think matters over quietly." Nor had Edith volunteered any information beyond the brief fact of her engagement, which she had imparted on the night of the dinner. There was an atmosphere of calmness about them all, it seemed to Constance, and she found herself charged against conditions. Again and again she reminded herself that the affair was not concern of hers, that she had no right to resent her cousin's pluck, that it was ridiculous for her to make herself unhappy over the unfortunate circumstances. She could not rid herself of a sense of depression.

It was, therefore, with a throb of gratitude that she heard Edith, soon after her mother had gone back into the house, say:

"Sit down here by me, Connie. I want to talk to you. I've had a horrid time since I saw you yesterday."

At last Constance thought, she would learn something of Tom's fate.

"Thank you," she said, obeying Edith's motion for her to take a seat on the broad wicker divan. "I am sorry you have had a horrid time, dear."

"I know you are," Edith affirmed. "And that is why I want to talk to you and tell you what has happened."

Finding it rather agreeable to pour forth her grievance to a sympathetic listener, Edith gave a graphic account of the encounter of last evening, repeating with evident enjoyment her scathing replies to Tom's appeal. So absorbed was she in her story that she did not see the stern look that was changing Constance's naturally curving lips to a hard line. Finally, the narrator told of the letter she had found on her table.

"I laid it there," Constance said briefly.

"I supposed it was you," remarked Edith. "I was so angry at Tom's daring to write to me that I actually was not a bit afraid to run all the way down to the gate and mail his letter to him unopposed. He must have received it this morning."

To her astonishment, her companion uttered an exclamation of mingled horror and compassion. Her eyes were wide and dark, her face pale.

"And that," Constance accused, "that is the way you treated an honorable gentleman!"

A DENUNCIATION

"Connie!" gasped the girl. "What do you mean?"

Constance had risen to her feet. Her cousin had never before suspected the existence of the temper that now flashed forth.

"Mean!" she exclaimed. "I mean that you have been cruel, unjust—both you and Ralph—and that you, a girl who is supposed to be capable of tenderness, have trampled under foot the love of a good and honorable man. Oh, I know you don't trust him"—as Edith tried to check her—"but that is nothing to be proud of! I should think you would be ashamed to acknowledge what you have done!"

She stopped with a quick catch in her breath, as if suddenly overwhelmed at the sound of her own tempestuous denunciation. Then, turning, she went swiftly into the house.

Household Suggestions

When making a fruit pie do not put the sugar on the top under the crust, but mix with the fruit below, otherwise it makes the crust heavy and is more liable to boil out.

To remove labels from bottles, wet the label with water and hold it over the flame for a second or two. The steam quickly penetrates the label and softens the gum or paste.

To clean sultanas quickly, place the fruit in a floured cloth. Tie the ends of the cloth and shake well for five minutes. The stalks will fall off and the fruit will be clean for using.

Boiled potatoes make an excellent substitute for soap when the hands have become blackened by contact with pots and pans. Rub a little potato well into the hands and wash in warm water.

Flowers keep better in damp sand than in water. Flowers for the table may be more gracefully and firmly arranged in a jar of wet sand than in a foundation of moss.

To remove bloodstains, soak the article in cold water to which ammonia has been added; wash in warm water with naphtha soap.

To polish a black marble clock rub over with olive-oil and finish with a clean chamois leather.

A simple, effective glue that is harmless, colorless and odorless can be made by adding ordinary tapioca to water and boiling.

Before eating no orange, soak it in hot water for half an hour. The skin will loosen and come off easily, and the orange will be as sweet as if freshly picked.

Frost-bitten vegetables should be soaked in cold water for one hour before boiling. A piece of saltpetre should be added to the water in which they are cooked.

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

TELL HER OF YOUR LOVE

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am twenty-five and in love with a girl one year my junior. We have been playmates since childhood. My brother, four years my senior, has been abroad for many years. Now he has returned and is trying to win this girl's love. I am making a fair salary, but could not yet give to this girl all the comforts she is used to. I am desperate. BROTHERS.

Why not talk the matter over with your brother? He may not realize how much this means to you. He cares too, you must each tell her of your feelings, and when she has chosen, feel that the best man has won and that the other has no grievance.

MAKE FIRST OVERTURES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am in love with a young man two years my senior, and have had a quarrel with him. By watching his actions I think he very much wants to make up the same as I do. Kindly tell me which of us should speak first. ANXIOUS.

It is a good rule for the one who first offended to "speak first." The difficulty lies in the belief of each that this applies to the other.

Men are proverbially stubborn, and if your love means a great deal to you don't risk it on the score of pride. Make the first overtures, but don't be humble, and don't repeat them if they are rejected.

For Freckled, Tanned, Red or Wrinkled Skin

Just beneath that freckled, tanned or reddened complexion there is an absolutely beautiful skin of purplish tint and delicacy. If you could only bring this complexion to the front, dissolving the tanned one! Well, you can—in the easiest, simplest, most natural manner imaginable. Just get at any drug store an ounce of ordinary mercolized wax, apply nightly like cold cream, removing in morning with a washcloth. The wax absorbs the impurities, dirt, tissue, blackheads, pimples, or other disguises with the old skin. Nothing else will accomplish such wonderful results in so short a time.

Four times any other powder weighs often appears on the face. In such cases nothing is better than a face mask made of pure mercolized wax and witch hazel. This is unmasking, indeed.

PANAMA CANAL OPENS TO 10,000 TON VESSELS WTIH BIG CEREMONY

PANAMA, Aug. 15.—The opening of the Panama Canal to ships of 10,000 tonnage was celebrated today with elaborate ceremonies in which Colonel Goethals, U. S. A., builder of the waterway, played a prominent part.

The United States was not officially represented and the celebration was designed but little of international significance in the event.

The steamship Ancon, owned by the War Department, which is under charter by the Panama Railroad, was chosen as the first big ship to be sent through the famous waterway.

The program called for ceremonies extending throughout the day. In connection with the passage of the Ancon. At 7 a. m. the ship anchored at the end of the deepwater channel on the Atlantic side, she being scheduled to go through the Gatun locks about 9 o'clock, making the passage of Culebra Cut about noon and reach the Pacific ocean end about 5 p. m. Colonel Goethals, with a distinguished party, was upon the bridge of the Ancon.

All the seventy-four regular officers and crew on the Ancon were in white uniform, and the ship was dressed with the flags of all nations.

Among the invited guests on the Ancon was President Porras of the Republic of Panama.

When the Ancon started on her historic voyage through the canal she was greeted with toots from the whistles of all the ships in the harbor. The Panama national band, which was on board, played the "Star Spangled Banner," and other patriotic tunes but the music was drowned in the roar of the ship salutes.

The Ancon was loaded with the cargo she had brought from New York. She, however, was on board purposely to give the canal a full test.

INTEREST IN BIG AMERICAN SWIM IS STATE-WIDE

"Thru the water frolics and races to be held in the Charles River Basin on Saturday afternoon, August 22, in connection with the swimming carnival of the AMERICAN, will be the most successful held since this popular entertainment the idea several years ago, is evidenced in the interest manifested in all parts of the State.

The aquatic sports will be held from 2 to 5 p. m., and invitations are out to bring their little ones and enjoy themselves.

At least 125,000 persons witnessed the diving and swimming matches last year in the basin, and not a complaint was registered about crowding, it being the consensus of opinion that the place is as situated that everyone can enjoy the events without fear of injury.

The course mapped out for the big race, the principal feature, will be along the Boston side of the Charles River from the bath, between the Union Boat Club landing and Harvard bridge. The turn will be made for the return trip at a stake boat a few feet from the bridge and then down stream to the boat landing of the clubhouse.

A Little Civil War in the United States

It Is Less Serious but More Shameful Than the International War in Europe.

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

What do citizens think of our little American war—the war of those that own the foodstuffs against those that need to eat?

What do the people think and what will the government DO about the gentlemen engaged in putting up prices of food artificially by conspiracy and without excuse?

It is bad enough to see Europeans cutting the throats of their enemies across the border.

But to see Americans sticking the knife of high prices into the stomachs of their brothers at home is a sight more painful.

How long are the "gentlemen in business" going to carry on this war?

How long will those guilty stay out of jail?

How long will public opinion postpone the expression that will take decided legal and physical form and settle the matter?

There is not the slightest excuse for the vicious, criminal fight that certain dealers are making against the citizens of this country.

Our markets are glutted with food. We have not only all that this nation can eat, BUT ALL THAT WE USUALLY EXPORT TO OTHER NATIONS, since it is practically impossible to export food.

The farms are producing, the meat, grain, all the vegetables and fruit are with us in great abundance, and war is made the excuse of the robbers for declaring war against their own people.

That ought not to last long, if there is any power in public sentiment, any conscience in public officials.

Needless to say, with the products that come to us from Europe the situation is different. Those that have for sale imported goods, whether to eat, drink or wear, or to use in trade, are justified commercially in speaking and raising prices. The supply is limited, it will soon be exhausted unless conditions improve. The demand is great.

As we live under the system of supply and demand—that is to say, "the devil take the hindmost"—holders of imported goods are commercially justified in raising prices.

The man who raises the price of food produced in this country is guilty of war against his fellow citizens. An ordinary jail is too good for him.

The fact that it is too good should not prevent his going to it.

Just Stick the Little Flags on the Big Map

Follow the Progress of the Great War at Home—It Is Just Like a Game and the Most Interesting One You Ever Played—You Will Find Both the Flags and the Map in Your Sunday AMERICAN Tomorrow.

In tomorrow's Sunday paper the AMERICAN is going to print a big full-page map, showing the scene of the war in Europe.

With the map will be printed a lot of little flags, the ensigns of the nations that are doing the fighting.

Get the idea?

It is your chance to follow the war, just as they are doing it this very minute in the army headquarters in Paris, in Berlin, in London, in St. Petersburg, in Brussels, in Vienna.

It is just like a game and it is the way the commanders of soldiers play their war games in time of peace, only this time it is a real war game and you will find it the most interesting game you ever tried.

Here is the way to play it.

Paste the map you will find in tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN on a card, or on a piece of board, or on the wall.

Cut out the little banners and help yourselves to flagstaffs from the pincushion.

Then read the news in the Sunday AMERICAN and see where the opposing armies are marching or fighting.

Then stick the flags on the map, German where the Germans are, French where the French are, English where the English are, and so on.

For instance:

The Belgians have been fighting to defend Liege from the Germans. If you read in the Sunday AMERICAN that the forts still hold out, stick a Belgian flag in Liege and a German flag just outside. If the Germans have captured the forts, stick the German flag in Liege itself.

In Germany, just across the border from France and just a little north of the Swiss frontier, is a town named Muelhausen. There has been a lot of fighting around Muelhausen and will probably be more. Anyway, you will most likely stick a French or a German flag there—which one, the dispatches will probably tell you.

In this way, follow the war news, every day, shifting the flags about to correspond with the movements of the armies and navies. The news Monday may mean a lot of changes from Sunday and the news Tuesday may mean a lot more.

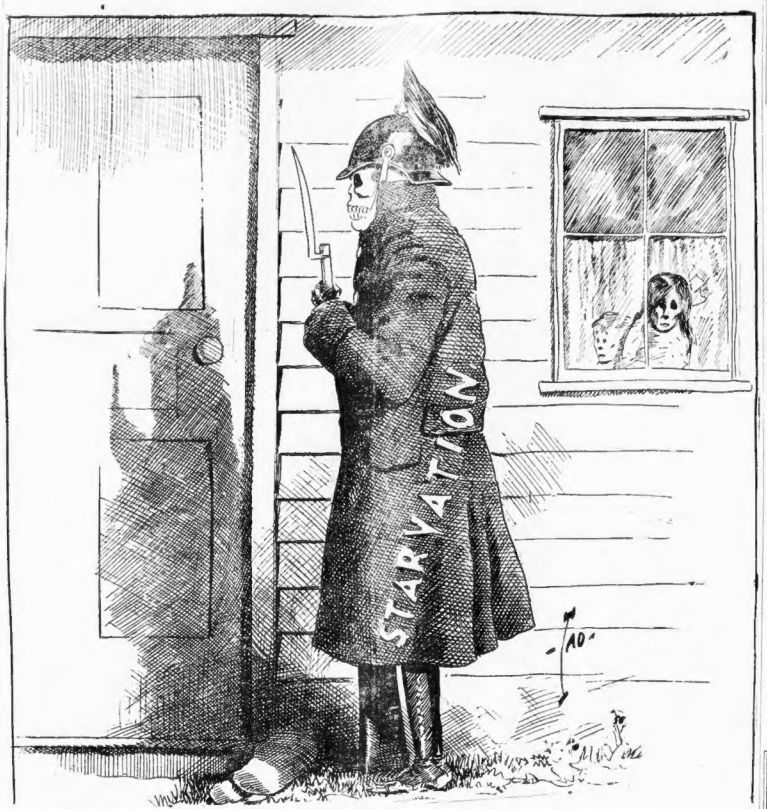
You will find it interesting from the start and soon you will be running to the map to shift your flags the minute you get your paper.

Father, mother, big brother, big sister, little brother, little sister, this is for all of you. Play the game together, not for fun, but because you will find it absorbingly interesting, and because you will learn more about the great war now being waged across the water than you can learn in any other way.

Incidentally, the great Napoleon used this very idea in playing his game of war. With pins with different colored heads he would mark the positions of his own soldiers and those of the enemy on the map.

Then he would shift them about and the next day he would win another battle.

The Sentinel!



He stands at the door of millions of homes in Europe.
He is on guard; the women and children fear him while the men are away fighting.
How LONG will he stand at the door of misery? That is the question of the war.

Literary Success—No Aspirant to That Honor Can Hope to Climb to the Summit on Others Suggestions as to How They Did It

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1914, by the Star Company

"I believe that I can augment my salary with my pen, provided I find out what to write about and how and where to dispose of the articles I write.

"Any advice that you think would be valuable to me in enabling me to gain a footing in this field will be most gratefully received.

"A PROFESSIONAL MAN."

THIS letter from a professional man expresses an idea which is entertained by many people today—an idea that success in writing can be obtained through the advice, the counsel and the assistance of some other individual, some one who has travelled the literary road, and arrived at a house of rest, or one who has climbed half way to the summit and can survey the road behind and direct those who are starting out to attempt the ascent.

The ten subjects which might seem to one mind of value to the magazines and newspapers would differ materially from those suggested by another.

One hundred people might suggest ten times one hundred topics to this professional man, but unless he had thought of the subjects himself, and felt strongly impelled to write upon them, he would not be liable to make his way over the literary footlights, and win his audience.

Once a man has gained the ear of the public by saying something which was in his heart, or which emanated from a white-hot brain, then he may take other people's ideas and successfully send them forth; but it is questionable if any man or woman ever lived who made a literary success of any kind by following such methods as this professional man suggests.

In this era the very atoms of space are teeming with interesting ideas. Every wind is laden with them, and one has but to commune with his own mind to find a wealth of subjects waiting to be discussed.

Editors are watching with eagerness for new ideas and for old ones couched in new terms, presented in new forms, or clothed in new guises.

There was never a time when writers of prose or verse, of fiction or fact, had a larger, brighter outlook.

There was never time when so many editors and publishers paid such generous prices for so large a variety of literary products as at this time, with us, here and now.

The man who thinks he has ability to write must first catch his own theme; he must put it in his own language, and he must himself proceed to find the way to the public's favor. No one can find it for him.

The would-be writer must study his periodicals for which he hopes to write, and learn what manner of material they use. Then he must use his own judgment and good sense in what he sends.

And he must bring to his aid infinite patience and great interest in what he is doing. The writer who loves his work and enjoys the doing of it, is the one the readers will enjoy.

And what the readers enjoy the editors will like. Because that means the success of their periodicals.

Only eternal ideas educate.

"Not from a vain or shallow thought
His awful Jove young Phidias brought;
Never from lips of cunning fell
The thrilling Delphic oracle;
Out from the heart of Nature rolled
The burdens of the Bible old;
The litanies of nations came,
Like the volcano's tongue of flame,
Up from the burning core below."

And Then You're Bumped

By WEX JONES

YOU pick up something to read in the train and you come across a story something like this:

"Are you a brave man?"

Smith started and looked at the speaker, who was clearly a Frenchman. We say "clearly a Frenchman," because he shrugged his shoulders ten or fifteen times a minute, and if that isn't clear enough for a short-story writer, nothing is.

Smith being stranded in Paris, the question interested him, as there might be a franc or two in sight.

"Am I brave?" repeated Smith. "Well, I'm moderately brave at five francs, and for twenty I'm as brave as a lion."

"Good," said the stranger. "Twenty francs for you. And le boxe—can you use your fists?"

"Surest thing you know," says Smith, "I used to box with Jeffries."

"You must, ask no questions. Just go into a house I shall point out to you. Defend yourself if attacked."

By this time you are becoming interested. Here, you think, is a story of the old-fashioned romantic kind. Good. Nothing about eugenics, suffrage, psychology. All mystery, fighting adventure—love, probably.

"Right-o," says Smith, "give me the twenty francs and show me the house."

The mysterious stranger leads Smith to a gloomy house, which, of course, has "something sinister about it."

"Enter. Fight if you are attacked. Be brave."

Smith enters the dark hallway. Sounds of barbaric music are heard from behind hangings of Oriental splendor. (Getting exciting now. It's about this point that you become interested so that you ride past your station and later have to take the village cab back from Losthurst.)

Pushing aside these hangings of Oriental splendor, Smith walks boldly into a big hall. A Sultan of Oriental ferocity is on a throne, a Sultana of Oriental beauty by his side. Dancing girls of Oriental freedom are before him. Black slaves (probably "gigantic Nubians") stand behind him. The Sultana throws Smith a bulbul blossom. "Off with the Glaour's head!" roars the Sultan. Smith clinches with the gigantic Nubians. Some scrap! Whirroo!

Of course, "after a gallant fight," Smith is borne under and the scimitar is about to disconnect his head from the rest of his system (as the trust laws are supposed to do with corporations) when the mysterious Frenchman enters and says:

"Some film, boys, some film."

It was all in the movies, you see. You throw the periodical out of the window, possibly you curse. You get out at Losthurst, take the village cab and resolve never to look at a story again until you have glanced at the finish and made sure you won't be faked.
